Welcome to Czech Republic

Vaclav Havel Airport (<https://www.prg.aero>), formerly known as Prague Ruzyně International Airport, is the main international airport serving Prague, the capital of the Czech Republic. Named after the former Czech president and playwright, Vaclav Havel, the airport is located about 12 kilometers west of the city center. It serves as a hub for several airlines and offers connections to destinations across Europe, Asia, and North America. The airport handles millions of passengers annually and is equipped with modern facilities to accommodate both domestic and international travelers.

PRAGUE is a convenient destination
